Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, all of New Lenox, were married with Rev. Father Roman Hasenstab officiating, the single ring ceremony being used.

White peonies banked the altars, while two large baskets of peonies and white snapdragons were on either side of the main altar.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white chiffon organy over white satin, with sweetheart neckline and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of white net fell from a white beaded halo. Her colonial bouquet was of white Johana Hill roses.

Miss Marguerite Miller, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and wore a gown of pink chiffon organy, trimmed in blue as was her net hat with halo brim. Her bouquet was Talisman roses.

Bernard Ruettiger served as best man and Donald and Harold Miller, cousins of the groom, were ushers.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents from 7 to 9 p. m. The bridal table was decorated with a beautiful three tiered wedding cake, covered with pink roses. Tapers were at either end. Pink streamers decorated the room and bouquets of spring flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller have gone to housekeeping in their own home in New Lenox.

The bride was graduated from the Joliet Township High School, as also was the groom who is employed at the Sanderson & Porter Construction Co., at the Elwood Office Plant.

Public Service Co., Says Electric Farms are Open

Equipped with the latest in electric convenience for farm and home, demonstration electric farms are again open to the public this summer. The Public Service Company, several farms, according to announcement by these farms are located in this area and those nearest this community, include:

George Hasenjaeger, 2 1/2 miles south of Frankfort.

F. H. Pilcher, 2 miles north of Plainfield, 3-4 mile west of route 59 J. Berg, 13 miles west of Joliet on route 52, quarter mile south.

E. E. Anderson, 2 miles north of Stavanger, 1 mile east; or 7 miles south of Seneca and 1 mile east.

W. Stoeven, two and a half miles north of Beecher, on route 1.

W. G. Keuch, South side 175th St., 1 mile west of Central, Tinley Park.

This is the fifth successive year such farms have been open for inspection, the company declares, and farm owners are cooperating to make the demonstrations possible. In 1940, more than 22,000 persons visited the farms; this number included various 4-H clubs and other organizations which held meetings and outings at the farms. Farms this year will be open from 1 to 6 p. m., daily except Sunday through September.

As in previous years, the announcement stated, the sole purpose of the demonstration farms is to acquaint the farmer and his family with the newest advances in farm and home electric equipment—such as refrigerators (home and dairy), frozen food storage lockers, water heating and pumping, lighting (interior and exterior), feed grinding and portable motor uses, chick brooding, spraying, ironing, washing, dairy operations, cooking and other duties performed by electricity.

Also as in years before, for those interested in costs of operation, special "check" meters have been installed on many of the larger appliances; these separate meters enable the farm operator to keep a check of the kilowatt hour consumption of the individual appliances.

Owners of the farms and the Public Service Company join in extending a general invitation to the public to plan a visit to one or more of these demonstration farms this summer.

L. G. BRUDER SEEKS ROAD IMPROVEMENT

L. G. Bruder of Mokena has of late contacted the state highway department relative to the repair of the highway running west of Mokena and has sent the following letter to Glen Fletcher, Will County Supt. of Highways:

"I am informed by W. A. Rosenfield, Director of Department of Public Works in Springfield, that the road running west of Mokena for about a half a mile is a state aid route and as such, it would be eligible for improvement by Will County, using motor fuel tax funds allotted to the county by the state or any county funds which might be available for road improvement.

"Therefore, I wish to inquire if there are any funds available either from the gas tax or county for the improvement of this highway. The bridge on this highway is too narrow and should be widened before some serious accident happens and the railing on the bridge which was knocked off several months ago, should be replaced.

"I shall appreciate hearing from you whether or not there are any funds available for the improvement of this highway."

'Non-Coms' Are Real Backbone Of U. S. Army

Corporals, Sergeants Need Leadership Ability, Character.

(Special to Western Newspaper Union)

WASHINGTON. — The backbone of the army is the non-com.

In Uncle Sam's new army of 1,400,000 men, approximately 346,712 soldiers will be non-commissioned officers. Selective service men will wear a substantial number of these chevrons of leadership.

"Parents of soldiers who wear chevrons should be proud," says George C. Marshall, four-star general, and chief of staff of our army.

It is a fighting army Uncle Sam is developing and these non-commissioned officers have taken the first step upward in the chain of command which starts with the two stripe corporal, and in the military service, ends with the four stars worn by General Marshall.

In addition to the 346,712 soldiers holding warrants as non-commissioned officers, 429,253 are rated as first class privates, with consequent increases in pay and responsibility. Another medium available for the recognition of aptitude and devotion to duty in our army are "Specialist" ratings. A total of 398,397 soldiers are rated as "specialists," with increases in pay ranging from $3.00 to $30.00 per month.

"While every man with the colors will benefit from his service, those men who are promoted will develop traits of character which will be of tremendous value to them on their return to civil life," General Marshall said.

Character, Ability Important.

"All noncommissioned officers are appointed by regimental or similar commanders, on the basis of recommendations made by the soldier's immediate superior. These men are specially selected, and seniority carries little weight. Character and demonstrated ability are essential attributes," General Marshall continued. "Grave responsibilities are placed on the shoulders of these soldiers, as indicated in the opening sentence of their warrants."

"Reposing special trust and confidence in the fidelity and abilities of—" reads the opening sentence which continues, "I do strictly charge and require all Noncommissioned Officers and Soldiers under his command to be obedient to his orders." The document continues.

Throughout the world's military history, commanders have ever relied upon the resourcefulness, fortitude, and strength of character of the noncommissioned officer. In Philip of Macedonia's early Greek army, it was the Lochagos; while in Caesar's Roman army, it was the Decurion who carried those forces through to victory. Napoleon recognized the importance of the enlisted man and noncommissioned officer, stating that "every soldier carries a marshal's baton in his knapsack."

General Marshall observed that in many respects the strength of character of noncommissioned officers must be as great or greater than that of commissioned officers. The non-com lives with his men 24 hours a day and participates in every phase of their lives. Despite this familiarity, which the old adage declares "breeds contempt," the non-com must demonstrate that he is a better man—not physically, but mentally. The officer in maintaining discipline is armored with a certain degree of aloofness. This simplifies his task of maintaining discipline. But the corporal living with his squad of some eight or twelve men is on his own.

Enhance Self-Respect.

"Many of our citizens feel that the noncommissioned officer's task is simplified because of the support he always receives from officers. However, the new army we are developing is not an army where fear of punishment is the right arm of discipline," General Marshall said. "It is an army where every effort is made to enhance the soldier's self-respect. Consequently, the non-com must ever be alert to curb any possible tendency to violate the Code of the American Soldier. Instead of waiting to report violations of orders, with possible disciplinary action, the corporal, by example and straight talk, prevents these derelictions which so vitally affect a military organization."

Should our armies have to take the field in defense of American liberties, the responsibilities of corporals and sergeants would be tremendous. In order to develop their military qualifications for command, these non-coms attend schools, and one of the basic points emphasized is that the leaders who permit one of their men to be killed needlessly is a murderer. With such high standards, it is apparent that the character development which accompanies appointment as noncommissioned officer is a factor which will pay dividends in both civil and military life.

The road leading to a commission and further advancement in the army is also open to enlisted men, and on July 1, 1941, 10 Officers' Candidate schools will open in various parts of the country. A total of 2,300 warrant officers and enlisted men, all with at least six months' service, will attend these schools. Men successfully completing the course will be commissioned as second lieutenants. It is probable that the majority of these students will be noncommissioned officers, for they have already demonstrated their worthiness for promotion.

In the army, as in civil life, increased responsibility is rewarded by increased pay. All of the men now entering the service start with base pay of $21.00 per month. At the end of four months' service, their pay is increased to $30.00 per month, unless inefficiency or other unfitness indicates that the soldier is unworthy of receiving extra compensation. The next promotion is to first class private, carrying an advance of $6.00 per month. From first class privates the corporals are selected and they receive $54.00 per month. Pay of other noncommissioned grades are: Sergeant—$60.00 per month; staff sergeant—$72.00 per month; first or technical sergeant—$84.00; and master sergeant—$126.00.

Modern Science Improves Value Of Cloth Fabrics

CHICAGO.—Women in small cities and rural communities have reclaimed homemaking leadership by their wholehearted acceptance of consumer education. It is these women who today really understand and apply the principles of scientific homemaking.

Not so long ago, when modern homemaking first reared its scientific head, it was perfectly true that the city gal's glib talk about thread count and vitamin content—backed by a Home Economics degree—had the farmer's wife definitely at a disadvantage.

Then came rural electrification, and modern homemaking paraphernalia was no longer the city woman's special privilege. Expansion of the 4-H club, the Grange, and county agent activities brought new knowledge of how to safeguard the health, wealth and happiness of these vast areas.

Today, the co-ordinated power of these educational groups and homemakers is felt in every branch of industry—for, by their refusal or acceptance of new ideas in homemaking, industries rise or fall.

For example, professional laundering has been a leader in practical consumer education, with far-reaching results in consumer protection, and in forcing manufacturers to produce products to match consumers' new standards.

Laundrymen became tired of "taking the blame" for washing failures and called on science to protect them with their customers. Through their national association, the American Institute of Laundering, they set up research laboratories in Joliet, Ill.

Results have been interesting. For instance, a few years ago, the farmer's daughter and her city sister judged a bed sheet only on price and appearance. If it fell to pieces after a few washings at home they were downhearted but didn't know what to do about it; if it came back from the laundry somewhat in shreds, they blamed the laundry.

So, bed sheets were put through the research laboratories. These scientific studies revealed that the inherent weaknesses of the sheets themselves were to blame for the damage—not the washing process.

With consumers and the professional laundries demanding sheets which meet minimum standards, the manufacturers got busy and produced them.

Methods of dyeing also are subjected to the laundries' test tubes. Color fastness is an important subject to the housewife. It is estimated that about $50,000,000 is wasted annually because fading colors destroy the eye appeal of garments otherwise wearable. By the way, the scientists point out that few, if any, home treatments for "setting" fugitive colors are effective. If such remedies possessed merit, textile dyers and printers would adopt them. Some of these "home treatments" merely fail to be effective, while few even harm the fabrics.

Increasing South American exports to U. S. improve hemisphere relations . . . 'Cost' of aiding Britain continues to rise.
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON. — United States imports from the South American countries have zoomed as a result of the war, so that many of them now actually have favorable balances of trade against Uncle Sam.

The importance of this is tremendous, because the chief difficulty of expanding inter-American trade has always been that South America wanted to buy lots of our products, especially automobiles, refrigerators and other manufactured goods, but found it very difficult to sell us anything. We not only produced so many competitive articles, which aroused clamor for tariff protection by our producers, but there is the little episode of the pure food regulation, which not only kept out Argentine meat but gave it a black eye before the world.

As evidence of the recent spurt we bought from Argentina, in the first quarter of 1941, a total of $35,512,000 worth of goods. Yet in the whole year 1940, though the war was in progress during that entire year, we bought only $33,301,000.

From Uruguay in the first quarter of 1941 we bought $16,797,000 worth of goods. In the whole year 1940 we bought only $17,629,000.

That's only half the picture of the improved financial position of the South American countries as a result of the war, if we take only trade with the United States into consideration.

In the first quarter of 1941 we sold Argentina $16,923,000 worth of goods. This was a big drop, as in the full year 1940 we sold her $106,877,000. With Uruguay we about held our own, selling her $2,998,000 in the first quarter of 1941, as against $11,275,000 in the full year of 1940. The reason for the drop in our exports to Argentina was the rigid Argentine exchange and import control in the early months of 1941.

EXPECT TRADE AGREEMENT

With this improved situation, from the South American standpoint, the door is now open to a real trade agreement with these two countries, and one is now expected very shortly.

The administration is very anxious to take advantage of the present war-given opportunity. Congress has voted virtually all the money wanted by Jesse Jones, in his capacity as the greatest lender of all time, for the purpose of making sure that the United States buys all the exports that Latin America wants to sell.

Part of the object is military, part of it is looking forward to a trade war after armed conflict ceases.

Strained as she is, Japan is sending a ship loaded with all sorts of sample products to South America right now. Germany is ready to resume her old barter program with our Southern neighbors, and has done her best to keep her connections despite the blockade.

Leaving out the huge German racial groups in the South American countries, most of the people would rather trade with the United States. The governments, especially, found that the barter system did not work as much to their advantage as had at first appeared.

Uncle Sam now hopes for an era of good feeling toward him from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn.

British Aid Costs Continue to Rise

The determination of President Roosevelt to defeat Hitler, at whatever cost, has never changed. This has been pointed out in these dispatches since September, 1939. There has never been the slightest reason for any backtracking on this. It is true that the measure of "cost" involved has changed tremendously, always upward. For example in the fall of 1939 all that the President—and indeed the military experts—thought would be necessary would be to amend the neutrality act so that, if the war stretched out into years, the United States could become Britain's arsenal.

It is interesting to note how this picture has changed, always with the effect of increasing the "cost." Early in the war the Germans had more success in hitting the British fleet than had been anticipated. When Britain lost so many destroyers, President Roosevelt met the first "ante" in the "cost." In the spring of 1940 he transferred the 50 overage destroyers to the British.

With the over-running of the low countries, and Norway, the "cost" increased enormously. As the terrific expense to which the British were put gradually cut down their available cash, the lease-lend bill boosted it further.

The next step, of course, is convoys. That is coming as surely as the necessity for giving the British the destroyers developed.

But the final element of "cost" is men, and that is coming too. It may be that they will be landed at Dakar. It may be, if the threat to Suez becomes more imminent, they will fight in that region.

Full Culture

No man receives the full culture of a man in whom the sensibility to the beautiful is not cherished; and there is no condition of life from which it should be excluded. Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

Nation's Farm Income Rises

LaSalle Map of Business Conditions.

An increase in farm product prices has brought the nation's farm income to its highest peak since 1937. As indicated by the map above, favorable business conditions prevail in most sections of the country.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

CHICAGO.—Farmers are receiving more money than they did last year, and are buying more goods, the result of increased income from higher prices for dairy products, grains and cotton. Advances in these commodities have more than offset the recent moderate declines in livestock prices, which are now at the top for several years. The general average for all farm prices is 12 per cent higher than a year ago, and is the highest since 1937. Government payments to farmers, which have been somewhat smaller, are expected to rise during the next few months.

Greatly increased purchasing power of consumers in cities, and the improvement in general economic conditions, have been partially responsible for these higher prices for farm products. Another contributing factor is government purchasing of large quantities of farm products under the "Food for Defense" program.

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY W.N.U. Release

INSTALLMENT 14 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition of his sweetheart.

CHAPTER XIX—Continued

To Roper's right, surprisingly close, a rifle spoke, once only. Roper could neither see the man who had fired nor guess his target. He waited five minutes, gun ready, then stood up and moved his pony down-slope into a shallow draw in which it was hidden by the brush. Moving cautiously, he proceeded north along the cut, seeking the position of the man who had fired.

Through the hillside brush a figure moved, crouching so low that his dark shape resembled a bear. After a moment Bill Roper was able to make out that the approaching man carried a light carbine.

The man with the carbine moved swiftly down the hillside, sliding on the hard crust of the snow, but surprisingly silent in the brush.

The watched man dropped into the ravine, angling toward the bend where Roper stood. Bill Roper pulled himself out of the gully. He was crouched in dense brush, gun in hand, as the scout appeared below him.

Roper stood up. "Steady," he said.

The man in the draw jumped as if he had been struck; but as he raised his hands he straightened so that Roper saw his face.

His captive was Shoshone Wilce. "By God," said Shoshone, "I was never so glad to see anybody in my life!"

Roper's voice bit like frosty ice. "You know where she is?"

"Yeah," said Shoshone. "Yeah, I know where she is."

Roper dropped into the gully to snarl close into Shoshone's face. "Is she alive? Is she all right?"

"Oh, yeah, sure," Wilce assured him. "She's alive, all right. Don't seem like she's hurt any. I—"

"Don't seem like?" Roper repeated. "Damn your hide, where is she?"

"Bill, seems like them buzzards have her down there at that cabin, and won't leave her loose."

"Who won't?"

"Bill, I don't know who."

"Well, how the devil did she get there?"

"Me," Shoshone said. He met Roper's eye bleakly. Obviously, he knew that he was in trouble here. "I brought her."

"Why in all—"

"She would have come anyway, Bill. She was dead set on locating you. She didn't have nobody else to ride with her. I figured you'd sooner I'd try to bring her direct to you, so somebody would be with her, than have her wandering loose around the country by herself. A bartender in Miles told me you were here, and we rode here. And then—then—"

"Well, then—what?"

"As I come into the valley," Shoshone said, "seemed to me like something was wrong. But I couldn't make out what. We come up to the cabin careful and slow, in the dark. But they seen us coming and they laid for us, I guess. Before we knew what had busted, they gunned her pony down, and they drilled mine twice so bad that I had to turn him loose. Most likely he's dead by now. I—"

"And you run out and left her," Bill filled in for him.

"Bill, I swear, I wouldn't have done nothing like that, not for no amount. Thing was, they was all around me; I couldn't see where to shoot or who they was. I figured first it was your own boys, making a mistake, and after I seen it wasn't, I just figured to keep in a fighting position, you might say, and close in first chance. Only—"

"Only you never saw any chance," Roper said with contempt.

"Well, no; there's seven of 'em down there, Bill, and they keep an awful steady watch. And I been scouting 'em steady ever since. Sometimes I get in a long shot at one or another of 'em. This carbine don't carry so very good, but I plugged two of 'em; don't know how bad."

"How do you know she wasn't shot or hurt when her horse went down?" Roper demanded. "By God, Shoshone, if you let anything happen to that girl—"

"They let her walk outside sometimes during the day," Shoshone said. "That's how I seen she's all right."

"Can you make out who the bunch down there is?"

"I figure they're some Thorpe gun squad, out after your scalp. I figure they was laying to gun you. And now that they got the girl, I figure that they aim to hold her for bait, kind of."

Shoshone fell silent, and Roper, deep in thought, let him rest.

"You're most likely right," Roper said morosely at last. "There's four or five of these Thorpe party out after me; and this could easy be one. But of all the infernal luck I ever saw—What did Jody want with me? Did she tell you?"

"Thorpe has made up his mind to kill her old man," Shoshone said. "I went and told her, because I thought you'd want her to know, so she could maybe look out for him some. But the old man wouldn't

Jody Gordon, and her father. After wiping Thorpe out of Texas, Roper conducted a great raid upon Thorpe's vast herds in Montana. Unable to reconcile her father with Roper, Jody set out with Shoshone Wilce to find him. They were attacked by listen to her and they had a row. So then the only thing she could think of was to come to you. She's got some notion of trying to get you and her old man together again."

"A fine chance!"

"That's what I told her. But she—"

"Why in God's name," Roper flared at him again, "didn't you go after help?"

"I figured I'd get strung up for sure," Shoshone said flatly, "if I went and told Gordon what I'd done. I wanted to come for you, but naturally I didn't know where you'd went. The only thing I could figure out, I better try to ghost around these hills and maybe whittle 'em down to my size."

"You say there are seven men in the cabin," Roper asked at last; "two wounded?"

Shoshone nodded. "They ain't all in the cabin all of the time. Seems like they must have had the girl tell 'em that she come here to meet you. Naturally they'd think you knew she was coming. Most likely they figure that if I ain't dead I'm carrying you word that will bring you here a-king. So they're holding her there now until they see if they can't get you. I ain't watched those fellers for fifteen years without knowing how they work."

"They're taking an awful chance," Roper said.

"They're taking an awful chance," Roper said, iron death in his eye. "If I rode in here, warned, with my wild bunch—"

"It ain't such a bad chance they're taking," Shoshone contradicted. "Night and day their outposts are out. Two men can check the whole country daytimes, so they can see you coming twenty miles. You only got here because you come up through the timber to the south, on the trail from Miles—the last way they'd figure you'd come. Nights there are more men on lookout than that, near as I can make out, and their lookout is strongest just before dawn—I suppose Iron Dog taught 'em that trick in the old days, always striking just before daylight, and now they can't get it out of their heads. Night and day they got ponies saddled. If ever they spotted your wild bunch riding in, they'd be almighty hard to catch."

"If only," Roper said, "the wild bunch was going to ride in! But it isn't."

"Maybe there's some way we could fake it, so they'd give up and clear out. I figure they'd leave the girl behind if ever they set out to run."

"I'm going down and smoke 'em out," Roper said through his teeth. "I'm going to smoke 'em out before the sun ever comes up again, and you're going to help me."

Shoshone nodded. "If we tackled 'em just before daylight, when the outpost is strong and the cabin is weak—"

They talked it over for a long time. In the hidden gulch where Shoshone had been hiding up they made coffee and cooked meat, and completed their plans.

"We can get in," was Shoshone's verdict at last. "We can get in, and we can take the cabin. But God knows how we're ever going to get out."

"I've got a plan for that," Roper said. He wouldn't tell Shoshone what it was.

CHAPTER XX

There were no stars when Roper roused himself in his blankets, and he had no mechanical means of telling the time. Yet he knew very definitely that dawn was just two hours away.

He shook Shoshone Wilce. The little man groaned once, then came full awake with the sudden response of an animal.

Without the snow the rock-like impenetrability of the overcast sky would have made the night utterly black, but the ghostly pallor of the snow had the effect of faintly modifying the darkness. The eye might possibly have made out a moving dark shape at ten yards; beyond that there was nothing but a muf-fling blackness.

"You lead out," Roper said. His voice was instinctively hushed, even at this distance from the enemy. "You've had more chance to study the lay than me."

Shoshone Wilce delayed. "Bill," he said, "I lay thinking about this time for a long time, after you was asleep." A dogged stubbornness came into his tone. "I figure we can probably take the cabin. And if we take the cabin without fighting we've got a chance to get away. But if so much as one shot is fired—Bill, the outposts will close like a b'a'r trap. I don't see no way we can ever get clear."

By the sudden frozen silence, Shoshone Wilce was able to sense Bill Roper's anger.

"I wish to God," Bill Roper said at last, "I had Hat Trick Tommy here, or Tex Long; or even the very greenest kid cowboy that's riding the range with them, somewhere to-night. I need one other man for this job. It wouldn't take an especially brave man, or smart man, nor a real good gunfighter. I just need one fairly good man. But I haven't even got that!"

"Bill, I only claim—look, Bill: I ain't afraid of 'em. I only—"

"You ain't afraid," Bill Roper repeated; "no—not much. But when the guns spoke, you left a girl down under her horse in the snow—maybe hurt, maybe dead—and you ran for your life."

When Bill Roper had said that, both were utterly still, while a man might have counted a hundred.

Shoshone's voice was flat and dead "Is that the way it looks to you?"

"Look at it yourself."

"Then," Shoshone said, "I guess there ain't anything more to say." He stood up.

"There's this to say," Bill Roper said. "You're going to work with me tonight because I haven't got anybody else. You're going to do exactly what I say, and when I say, without any back talk or question. You make one slip tonight and the West won't hold you, nor the world won't hold you, and you'll answer to me in the end. You hear me?"

"Okay," Shoshone said in the same flat, dead voice.

"One thing more," Roper said. "If we make a quiet job, we'll try to go out slow and quiet, the three of us together. Otherwise, you take Jody's lead rope and ride like hell. Six miles below here, near the creek, there's a kind of a brush corral. You and the girl will wait for me there. Wait for me until daylight begins to come; then go on."

They moved down into the valley of the Fork, walking fast. When they had dropped into the bed of Fork Creek itself they moved northward, following its windings, for what seemed a long way; but no sign of approaching dawn yet showed, and Roper felt that they had plenty of time. As they at last passed the point where the cabin stood, invisible in the dark, Shoshone indicated its location with raised arm; but they moved on fifty yards farther, so that they might approach the cabin from the north.

Cautiously now, Shoshone climbed the bank, silent as the Indians with whom he had spent his youth. Turning, he gripped Bill Roper's arm. His words were whispered close to Roper's ear.

"One of the night guards is out that-away, about five hundred yards," he whispered; "about in line with where you see that big dead pine."

Roper could see no dead pine. It annoyed him that Shoshone's eyes were better than his own—as good as the eyes of an Indian, or a lynx.

"I'll leave my carbine standing just outside the door," Shoshone said. "I only want it for later, after we've took to the horses."

"That's all right," Roper said. "But you remember this: If there's any trouble in the cabin, you stand and fight! Because if you don't, I'll turn and plug you myself, if it takes my last shot to do it."

"Okay."

Roper went ahead now, walking boldly across the snow. Better, he thought, to simulate the casual approach of friends than to depend upon a hope of complete surprise.

As he raised his hand to the door a strange thrill of dread momentarily stirred him at the thought that Jody Gordon was inside—with whom?

PROGRESS IN WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:44-52; Galatians 3:26-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.—Galatians 3:26.

"All people" are included in God's plan of redemption. When the angel of the Lord announced the birth of Christ to the shepherds he said, "Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" (Luke 2:10). The invitation is: "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17). The disciples naturally and properly first preached the gospel to the Jews, but the time came when God was ready to send them to the Gentiles, that they too might hear the message of redemption. That historic turning point is found in our lesson. As Paul and his fellow workers proceeded from Paphos on the isle of Cyprus to the mainland with their message of Christ's redemption, they met both

I. Popularity and Persecution (Acts 13:44, 45).

In the synagogue of Antioch of Pisidia they were invited to preach, and Paul was blessed in the presentation of a powerful gospel message. Read it in Acts 13:16-41. It met with such a response that the people "brought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (v. 42). So great was the popularity of Paul's message that the whole city came the next Sabbath "to hear the Word of God." What a wonderful sight that must have been and how the disciples must have rejoiced as they preached the Word.

But wait—there's a worm in that red apple of popularity, and its name is jealousy (v. 45). It caused the Jews to blaspheme as they contradicted Paul's preaching. Jealousy always makes a fool out of the one who yields to it. Yet this green-eyed monster is permitted to go right on destroying, hindering, hurting. In the church and the home, as well as in the social order, we let jealousy come in and wreck friendship, break down reputations, yes, even block the work of God. May someone learn the lesson of our text and turn away from that evil way—right now!

II. Rejection and Acceptance (Acts 13:46-52).

All through the record of Scripture and the history of man to this day we find some rejecting the grace of God—others accepting. Those who reject only prove themselves "unworthy of eternal life" (v. 46) and are themselves rejected of God.

The disciples now turn from the Jews to minister to the Gentiles, even as had been prophesied (Isa. 42:6; 49:6; Luke 2:31, 32). They accepted the word of truth and "were glad, and glorified the word of God." Rejection brought eternal death, but acceptance brought eternal life and joy.

They could not keep the good news to themselves, but had to spread it abroad. A lighted candle begins at once to shine. A redeemed soul longs to bring others to Christ. Persecution continued; in fact, was intensified to the point of physical ejection of the disciples. Were they downhearted? No! for the joy of the Lord filled their Holy Spirit-filled lives. Being filled with the Spirit means being filled with joy, even in the midst of persecution.

It really works! Have you given God a chance to prove it in your life?

III. Neither Jew nor Greek (Gal. 3:26, 27).

This selection from the letter which Paul wrote some ten years later to the people of the area in which he had now preached reveals the same truth, that faith in Christ is primary—and essential—in Christian experience.

In this early life we recognize distinctions based on nationality, sex, social position, and many other grounds. While these are overemphasized by most people, they are legitimate and necessary distinctions. But in Christ—ah! there the differences disappear. We are all one in Him (v. 28). This is a lesson which we have not learned even yet, but our slowness of heart and mind does not alter God's truth.

The church is talking much these days about ecumenicity, which in plain words means the unity of the people of the various branches of the church all over the world. All too often, however, the proposed basis of unity rests on a surrender or a partial surrender of what Paul declares to be the essential (the sine qua non if you wish), which is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. No other unity but that which centers in Him, and a personal relationship to Him, is sufficient either for this life or for the life to come.

Wonders of God
God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants His footsteps in the sea
And rides upon the storm.
—William Cowper.

FAMOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS. EASY TO MAKE. DELICIOUS!

They really are the most delicious muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! Made with crisp, toasted shreds of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they have a texture and flavor that have made them famous all over America.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening ¼ cup milk
¼ cup sugar 1 cup flour
1 egg ½ teaspoon salt
1 cup All-Bran 2½ teaspoons baking powder
Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2¼ inches in diameter.

Try these delicious muffins for dinner tonight or for tomorrow morning's breakfast. They're not only good to eat; they're mighty good for you as well. For several of these muffins will add materially to your daily supply of what physicians call "bulk" in the diet, and thus help combat the common kind of constipation that is due to lack of this dietary essential. Eat ALL-BRAN every day (either as a cereal or in muffins), drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation due to lack of "bulk." ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

How to Ship Your Flowers

PLANT FLOWER FRUIT GUILD

1. Boxes of Flowers: The standard measurement is the quantity of flowers that can be packed closely in a box having a top area of 12 inches by 12 inches (144 square inches). If the box to be reported has a top area of 288 square inches, it should be reported as two boxes. If it has only 72 square inches, it should be reported as one-half box.

2. Capacity of Standard Box. A box with a top area of 12 inches by 12 inches when packed in the usual way (closely), will contain about 16 small bouquets (bedside bouquets). It is realized that bouquets may be made up of flowers as small as violets, or as large as peonies, but our experience has been that the above estimate of the capacity of a 12 inch by 12 inch box is accurate enough for our purposes.

3. Boxes Packed with Blooms at End: When flowers are packed with the blooms at the end of the box instead of the top, the area of the end should be used in estimating the quantity. If the flowers are packed with blooms at both ends, the area of both ends should be used. The depth of the box need not be considered.

4. Large Bouquets: Since bouquets (not packed in boxes) vary in size, we have adopted 12 inches across as the standard for one large bouquet. (If the bouquet is larger or smaller, the number should change accordingly.) This also will contain about 16 small bouquets, (bedside bouquets).

5. Small Bouquets: This designation will include all small bunches of flowers, such as bedside bouquets, boutonnières, etc. They may vary in size, but will not exceed about six inches across when placed loose in a vase.

All members or non-members wishing to send flowers may do so. Flowers are to be packed in boxes and labeled on the outside, Mokena Garden Club, and the number of bouquets listed on the outside. Each bouquet is to be tied then wrapped in wet paper about the stems and then dry paper. Bring them to the depot on Wednesday morning boxed and ready to go at 8 o'clock.

NEW USE FOR EGGS

Selling eggs isn't the usual way to work through a Chicago school. But that is what Peter Tannis does. And that isn't all. He has to drive 250 miles twice a week to get there. He collects eggs from farmers near Plymouth, Indiana, and each Tuesday and Friday delivers them to Chicago customers; then rushes to his evening classes at Moody Bible Institute. And, added to that, he is now saving some of his egg money to enter day school in the fall.

The weather man spoiled three trips to the woods for this group of happy girls and yet they are not discouraged for they plan to spend the afternoon and evening at Tinley Creek Forest Preserve next Monday.

The regular meeting was held at the home of their guardian Wednesday afternoon. The assistant guardian was present.

The business meeting was interesting. The girls sang the first and last verse to the Star Spangled Banner. (Requirement.)

Anna Mae Stockman has worked out an original design for her head band which is very nice.

At the close of the meeting the girls rushed to the kitchen to pop corn. When this was finished each girl holding a bowl of pop corn munched and thought while the assistant Guardian conducted a flower quiz.

JOLIET CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Located at 156 N. Chicago Street, 3rd Floor, JOLIET, ILL.

Phone: 2-0995

The Joliet Conservatory of Music offers an excellent opportunity for folks to prepare themselves for one of the many well paid professions now open to talent as well as to become socially accomplished.

They offer a service that is greatly aiding in the musical development of this part of the state as here expert instruction is offered in all branches of music. The difficulties experienced by most pupils are due to a lack of elementary knowledge. Pupils here never meet these difficulties as thorough training is given in fundamentals as the realization that nothing can be built without a foundation. With the "Little Theatre" and amateur theatrical movement constantly gaining more popularity in this country histrionic ability becomes a decided asset and everyone should have a knowledge of at least the ground work of dramatic acting. The Joliet Conservatory of Music is offering an excellent service along this line and also specializes in public speaking.

Dancing is without doubt the most popular of the social arts and everyone should be able to dance and dance well. The Joliet Conservatory of Music offers an unusual opportunity to shortly learn to be a graceful dancer and pupils who have taken dancing lessons here are familiar with all the latest dances and soon become expert dancers.

George V. Hendrick, director will be glad to assist anyone in mapping out either a professional or social career and will give his individual attention to the selection of courses that are those desired and ones that each pupil can master.

In making this review we are pleased to compliment The Joliet Conservatory of Music upon their record and upon the position their graduates occupy in the professional and social world.

WCLS Broadcasting Station

Under the very courteous and efficient management of Mr. HOLT.

7 East Clinton

JOLIET, ILLINOIS

Dial 4761

One of the community's most necessary concerns is located in Joliet, phone 4761. So great has become the radio business of the nation that the modern radio station is an essential factor in every community of taste and refinement.

The radio—the greatest of all latter-day inventions and a modern miracle that has forever destroyed distance. Distance today as regards human communication is comparable to covering the world with your hat.

Today's news, market reports, amusements by the world's best entertainers, all are instantly brought from the four corners of the earth to entertain the family, comfortably seated about the old fireside.

Station WCLS is the favorite station for both advertisers and audience in this part of the country, as it offers excellent service and its management, Mr. Holt, has made it extremely popular with its atmosphere of friendliness. Station WCLS is one of the most modern stations in the countryside. Aside from the very best equipment they have radio operators and broadcasters who are plainly understood in all announcements, no matter whether it is merely the market, baseball, or other events you will find that the voice of this station rings clear and distinct. Farmers and others in the surrounding territory greatly appreciate the service they offer as they are enabled to sit at home and listen in on all the major events that are transpiring in the world.

Commercial broadcasting over this station has become very popular among business men over this part of the state as well as national advertisers. When your business is broadcast here it will sit up and take notice as it carries both the element of surprise and novelty which are valuable in advertising.

Their rates are reasonable and service is good. All you have to do is to call them on the phone and they will arrange all the details. If you do not happen to have in mind subject matter for the occasion they will write it for you, furnish you the announcer or put you on the radio just as you desire.

In a comprehensive review of this nature, embracing as it does the most salient features of our progress, we cannot fail to devote to the professional status of the community and justly so to a profession which is so essential as that of the modern funeral director and embalmer. Have you ever wondered how would work on your farm?

Probably you have. But have you seen the latest methods of home, barn and yard lighting . . . the newest ways of milking, pumping and heating water, feed grinding, refrigerating, cooking and other developments in electricity on the modern farm?

Now you can find out! Visit these nearby farms and see how electricity works . . . what it costs.

For the fifth successive year, demonstration electric farms—through cooperative arrangements between their owners and the Public Service Company—are open to you and your family. You are invited to inspect them. You'll find at least one or two (see map at right) in your immediate neighborhood—others are within easy driving distance.

Costs?

"Check Meters" have been installed to permit the farm operator to keep accurate accounts of the costs of operation of various individual appliances in use on his farm; charts containing the results of these checks translated into dollars and cents show "how much".

Open Now!

These farms are open for your inspection right now—they'll remain open all summer. Plan now to take your family, or a group of your friends, and visit at least one of these farms. Get the facts on how electricity can go to work for you on your farm.

Follow the map to these demonstration farms . . . all are within easy driving distance for the Electrified Farm signs.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY of Northern Illinois

"I do a lot of arranging these fine days . . ."

HAVE YOU ever thought how hard it would be to get a group of people together for a swim, or golf, or a picnic, if it weren't for the telephone? Take this party, for instance. Bob had the idea at noon on Saturday. Made a few calls. And presto! the whole crowd gathered for a fine afternoon of fun.

People take telephone service pretty much for granted—and that's the way it should be. But the 26,000 men and women of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company don't take it for granted. They try to keep every telephone in this area ready for instant action day and night. It's quite a job—but telephone people take pride in doing a good job. And that's one reason, probably, why the people here and in all America always have enjoyed the finest telephone service in the world. . . .

JULY 1ST IS REGISTRATION DAY FOR DRAFT

In accordance with President Roosevelt's proclamation, young men who by the first of next month have reached the age of 21 years since October 16, 1940 will be registered on July 1 for Selective Service under the provisions of the draft law passed by Congress last year according to announcement made by State Selective Service Director Paul G. Armstrong.

The July 1 registration will be held at the regular offices of the 180 local boards in Cook County, the hours of registration on that date having been set from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m. While young men who come within the above age provisions will be required to register at the local board offices having jurisdiction over their respective home addresses a man who ordinarily lives in another state or county (such as temporary visitors, university students, etc.) can register at any local board in the county. His card will later be forwarded to his home town local board. The same provision applies for Cook County residents who are visiting or temporarily residing elsewhere on July 1.

Selective Service Regulations require that every male citizen of the United States who has become 21 years of age since October 16, 1940 and every male alien who is in the United States on July 1st and who was not previously registered shall present himself at the local board offices on July 1 for Selective Service registration. The only ones exempted are those men who are now members of the Army, Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, and the Reserves of those components; the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Public Health Service, the active National Guard, midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy, cadets of the United States Military Academy and the United States Coast Guard Academy, cadets of the advanced course, senior division, of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps or the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps; diplomatic representatives, technical attaches of foreign embassies and legations, consuls general, consuls, vice consuls, and consular agents of foreign countries who live in the United States but who are not citizens of this country and who have not declared their intention to become citizens of the United States.

Failure to register as required subjects a violator to possible Federal prosecution and a sentence of five years in prison or a $10,000 fine, or both. Director Armstrong also pointed out that it is just as much a violation for a young man who is not 21 years of age to falsify his age and register deliberately for the purpose of securing a Registration Certificate that will permit him to be served with liquor. Several cases of this kind have already been dealt with severely.

Registration in each local board area will be under the immediate jurisdiction of the Chairman of the local board. So that registrants may be able to know the locations of their respective local board offices, a list of the board territories by ward precincts will be published in the press shortly before July 1. Since board areas are determined by ward precinct numbers, Director Armstrong urges very strongly that any young man who will be required to register on July 1 should, as soon as possible after he has reached the age of 21, go to the office of the Board of Election Commissioners in the City Hall or the Office of the County Clerk in the County Building and register to vote in regular public elections. By so registering to vote, the man will learn the number of his ward and precinct and consultation of the list of local board locations to be published later will readily show him where he must register for Selective Service on July 1.

The latest estimate of expected registration of new 21-year-olds, according to State Director Armstrong is 27,900 for Cook County which includes 23,800 for the City of Chicago and 4,100 in the county's suburban area. It is expected that the July 1 registration will be handled entirely by persons now officially connected with the Selective Service System.

Covered Wagon
This summer a creaking covered wagon will roll across prairies once traveled only by Indians and pioneers—and as it pushes through the years to historic days when America was young, happy boys living their dreams of frontier life, will sing this song: "Wagon Wheels . . . carry me home . . ." for the old covered wagon will traverse the years. It will carry those carefree youngsters back to the rugged times they read and hear about. Like fearless pioneers of a century ago, they will embark on a great adventure—but for them, these boys of today, there will be no red men to bar the way, except in their youthful imagination—the rest will be the same.

A prairie schooner, like the ones which carried brave men into a wilderness, drawn by a team of horses—rugged cooking utensils for use at the camp fire—bedding for "roughing it" in the open—all the ingredients for a caravan into the past.

The Community Center Foundation is featuring two-week camping trips, twenty miles into famed Will County as part of its Summer camp program. Wagon wheels will carry youngsters of today into the adventurous days of the past.

The Foundation nestles on a high hill, surrounded by acres of rolling, wooded slopes. Here not many years ago, the Potawatomi Indians built their village and sought to preserve their hunting ground. Relics of the Red Man's past, in the form of arrow heads and bow tips, still are to be found among the hills.

Amid this historic setting is Happy Hill Camp, at a location which many consider Chicagoland's best site for a rustic vacation for boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 15 years.

Happy Hill's Camp program is more than just the average summer routine. Here the children are put into small groups, not to exceed 12. They live together, work together, play together—all under the guidance of an expert leader who knows youth.

The Foundation operates a farm, and the campers may take their hand at helping with the cattle or tilling the soil. Milk, butter, eggs, fruits and vegetables, as well as grains are produced, and the boys and girls may help and thus they learn to appreciate nature as it affects their daily lives.

Adjacent to the camp is the famous Palos Forest Preserve, where 9000 acres of natural wild land, filled with plant and animal life, flourish. There are more than fifteen miles of trails blazed through the hills and woods. Under the guidance of a woodsman, the children learn to know nature—to enjoy rather than destroy.

A well arranged woodcraft and handicraft program is carried out, and instructions given to all; thereby directing their instinct of construction into useful channels. Wood carving, metal hammering, weaving, plastic art, provide a program that is creative and educational.

Comfortable and healthful living quarters are provided, and special emphasis is placed on a well balanced and wholesome diet. No expensive wardrobe or extensive equipment is necessary for an exciting and health-giving vacation at Happy Hill Camp.

The Camp has no large body of water or deep stream, thus eliminating elements of danger, yet the small brook gives the pleasure of wading and fishing.

Happy Hill Camp is dominated by an atmosphere of the Christian spirit of love and understanding, which joins with the elements of cooperative living and sharing to build a background of character that makes for fine citizenship.

The camp period includes a six-day covered wagon trip, two days on the trail, four days at the out-camp. This year swimming pools are included in the program.

First Aid on The Highway

Dr. Charles H. Phifer, newly elected President of the Illinois State Medical Society has announced that one of the projects of his administration will be an educational campaign on first aid following injuries on the highway. The plan has received the approval of the Department of Public Works and Buildings, Division of Highways.

LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE
Preamble: Series of instructions on First Aid Following injuries on the highway—Leave 'Em where They Lie

You, Mr. John Public, have, of general information, been told many things and been taught much about public health, about contagious diseases and their prevention, about tuberculosis and cancer.

You have learned much in the prevention of disease, in how reasonably to take care of yourself and your family when trouble threatens or arrives.

You have been taught that wounds may become infected and to go to your doctor early; you have been taught that a broken bone must be set; but you have not been taught what to do and why in the case of injury and emergency on the highway, where there is no one to whom to turn and you only have your own knowledge and ability to take care of such emergencies yourself.

The series of articles on the subject of highway accidents, describing each one in turn and telling you in each instance what and what not to do, is being published for your information, only to help you help yourself or someone else, your wife, your mother, your child, your neighbor, in such an emergency when the differences between saving life or limb depends upon doing the proper thing at the right time. A single act, wisely done, is better than a hundred acts hurriedly done without reason.

Why are you told to "leave 'em lie?" Because unless you have been taught what to do, you will do much more harm than good: because excitement, hurry, improper handling which often complicate matters seriously and rushing to a hospital or doctor increases shock tremendously and costs many lives.

Have the doctor or ambulance come to you and save lives.

Write to this newspaper about any questions which you do not understand.

EGG SIGNS NOT TAXED

Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes reports taking up the question of charging farmers for egg and vegetable signs with the Cook County Zoning Commission and he was assured that no such action was contemplated by the commission where farmers had the ordinary signs erected at their gates. It is only when such signs take on a commercial nature that the Zoning commission expects to charge a fee or to prevent them being erected.

STANDS the most powerful nation on the face of the world . . . powerful because of its 130,000,000 happy, unified, liberty-loving citizens . . . and powerful because of its infinite capacity to produce materials to construct a free, great country.

America boasts not of her capacity to produce goods for destruction, but stands serene and confident in this hour of world chaos in the knowledge that should the proponents of barbarism force her to do so, mankind will be stunned at the incredible torrent of death-dealing instruments a peace-loving, tolerant, but aroused people can fashion to crush the foes of tolerance and liberty.

God grant that our mountains will be undecaying monuments to our priceless heritage . . . that our boundless prairies will continue to produce not only our food, but the nourishment of those soil-rooted virtues which are threatened with banishment by the frenzied madmen of another continent. God grant that our great expanse of oceans will by their very greatness protect us from the exponents of doctrines that would rob us of our priceless rights of freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, freedom of assembly and freedom for an enlightened press. We are proud to be part of the first line of defense of American liberties . . . to always stand militantly at the side of every true American against the inroads of doctrines seeking to destroy America's priceless heritage.

YOUR SUNDAY DINNER
(See Recipes Below)

ESPECIALLY FOR DAD

Sunday, June the fifteenth, is the day you want to especially prepare DAD's favorite foods—for it's Father's day—and don't forget it. The favorite of all men is a good tasty meat pie—so the suggestion for the main course is a delicious individual meat pie. Dad doesn't like to bother much with side dishes of salad, so place his salad right on the plate with the rest of the meal. He likes a cole slaw stuffed tomato. Buttered carrots and peas are the vegetables. Because he is so fond of blueberries, it's blueberry muffins to go with the meal, and blueberry ice cream cake for dessert.

This week's menu is properly balanced for nutritional value. It supplies:

The appetizer: Carbohydrates, minerals, Vitamins A, B, C, and G. The Meat: Proteins, phosphorus, Vitamins B, B-1; fats, carbohydrates in crust.

The Vegetables: Minerals, Carbohydrates, Vitamins A, B, C, and G. Muffins and butter: Vitamins A, B, C, and G, minerals, carbohydrates.

Salad: Minerals, Vitamins A, B, C, and G, carbohydrates and fats.

Dessert: Carbohydrates, minerals, fats, Vitamins A, B, C, D, and G. To Serve 6 You Need:

- 1 can apricot nectar
- 1 can pineapple juice
- 2 lbs. lamb shoulder
- 2 bunches carrots
- 1 No. 2 can peas
- 6 tomatoes
- 1 small head cabbage
- 2 pints blueberries
- 1 pint ice cream

(Balance of materials among staples)

- *Individual Lamb Pies.
- 2 lbs. shoulder of lamb
- 2 small onions
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/4 teaspoons salt
- 2 1/2 cups milk
- Butter Pastry

Trim the lamb, cut in small cubes and brown in a hot frying pan. Add the chopped onion and cook until light brown, stirring constantly. Add the flour and salt and mix well. Stir in the milk gradually. Cover and cook over low heat for about 45 minutes or until the lamb is tender. Roll out pastry and place in individual pie tins or cut in six five-inch rounds and place in large cupcake pans. Fill with the lamb mixture and brush the rims of the pastry with milk. Top each pie with another round of pastry. Crimp the edges and cut slits in the top for the steam to escape through. Brush each pie with milk or cream. Bake in a 425-degree F. oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until the crust is evenly browned. Lift gently from the pan and serve.

LYNN SAYS:

Dad's day might be the one day when Dad would really like to try his hand in the kitchen. How about some feathery light biscuits to go with dinner? They're an easy trick if you just put out the ingredients for Dad, along with one of those big bowls and a spoon. Now sift 2 cups of flour, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, and 1/2 teaspoon of salt. Cut in 4 tablespoons of shortening, and then add about 3/4 of a cup of milk gradually. Stir until a soft dough is formed, not too long, though, or the biscuits will be tough. Turn the dough on a slightly floured board, pat to a 1/2-inch thickness, and cut with a floured biscuit cutter. Pop them into a hot oven (450 degrees) on an ungreased baking sheet for 10-15 minutes. Dad will probably like the large biscuits, so better give him the large cutter. The recipe will make about 12 biscuits of that size, or 16 of the smaller ones. Can't you just see him beaming over a plate of hot, flaky biscuits he made all by himself?

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- Chilled Mixed Fruit Juices
- *Individual Lamb Pies
- Buttered Carrots and Peas
- *Blueberry Muffins
- Butter
- Tomato and Cole Slaw Salad
- French Dressing
- *Blueberry Ice Cream Cake
- *Recipes given.

Butter Pastry.

- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 3/4 cup butter
- 3 to 5 tablespoons milk

Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in the butter with two knives or rub in with the fingertips. Add milk slowly, tossing the mixture together lightly and use only enough milk to hold the ingredients together.

*Blueberry Muffins.

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 3 tablespoons melted butter
- 1 cup blueberries.

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine eggs, milk and shortening and add to dry ingredients, stirring only until moistened. Fold in blueberries. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. Makes 18 muffins.

*Blueberry Ice Cream Cake.

- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/2 cups blueberries
- Vanilla ice cream

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Add the egg and beat well. Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Add the vanilla and pour into a buttered cake pan about 8 inches square. Sprinkle blueberries over the batter and bake in 375 degree F. oven for 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve warm with ice cream and warm blueberry sauce.

Blueberry Sauce.

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup water
- 1 cup blueberries
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons butter

Mix the sugar, flour and salt in a saucepan, and add water and blueberries. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Stir in lemon juice and butter.

SERVING HINTS:

Place individual pies right on the serving plate. The tomato cole slaw salads may be arranged on lettuce leaves on a platter and each person can serve himself from this platter. Peas and carrots always offer a good color combination. Arrange them in a bowl tossed together or separately arranged with carrots in the center and peas surrounding the carrots.

The dessert had better be served in a rather deep dessert dish. Place a square of cake in each dish, then top with a ball of ice cream. Over all pour the rich looking blueberry sauce. Prepare this dessert just before it is to be served. The whole family will love it.

USE OF LEFTOVERS:

Here's what to do with that bowl of leftover vegetables. Say you have peas, carrots and mashed potatoes. This a fine combination for Vegetable Puffs. Mix 1 cup leftover mashed potatoes with 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 1/2 cups peas, carrots, mashed, 1/2 cup flour and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Mix thoroughly together and drop by teaspoons into hot deep fat—350 degrees F. Cook until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 8 to 10 puffs.

Salt Solution Spray Relieves Sinus Trouble

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ONE of the great advances made in recent years is in the treatment of sinus infection. Formerly the main thought was to operate so that mucous or pus in a sinus could drain out properly. Operation is necessary in those cases where all other forms of treatment have failed.

Many patients received relief from cutting down on acid foods and table salt as recommended by Dr. A. E. Ullmann in his book "Sinus Infections and Colds." Acid foods are: Eggs, meat, fish, poultry, breads of all kinds both white and whole wheat), cereals, pastries, puddings.

Dr. William D. Gill, San Antonio, Texas, in the Medical World also advises the use of foods which leave an alkaline ash in the body and in addition advises cutting down on starch foods. As starch foods are necessary to the system to provide energy, Dr. Gill advises that they be cut down but slightly and only those starch foods which experience shows cause head colds and sinus disturbances; cane sugar, beet sugar and maple sugar apparently causing more disturbance than bread and potatoes.

Ultra violet and infra red rays are considered of great value by some authorities and also inhaling of warm air.

X-ray Treatment.

Dr. Gill is one of a number of physicians who have had success treating both early and late cases of sinus infection by X-rays, when other methods have failed to relieve the pain. Also, as recommended by most nose specialists now, Dr. Gill recommends ordinary salt solution—a teaspoonful of table salt to a pint of water—as a spray to help shrink the swollen lining tissue of the nose. Ephedrine is the most effective shrinking solution for spraying the nose but it should be used only in the strength recommended by the physician in charge of the case.

The point is that, aside from treating the nose or sinus direct, it should be remembered that the individual may be sensitive or allergic to foods and also that, in general, foods which are acid should be eaten in less quantities.

Use of Bile Salts For Gall Bladder

FOR years physicians have been trying to persuade patients with a slow or sluggish liver and a slow emptying gall bladder that better than all kinds of medicine is avoiding large meals, especially the foods rich in starch or fat. By eating small meals, four times a day instead of three large meals, there will be less work for and less congestion of the liver.

When the patient is willing to exercise, exercises that squeeze the liver—bending exercises with knees straight, deep breathing exercises—will stimulate bile flow, prevent congestion of liver, and empty the gall bladder in less time.

What, however, can be done for those who continue to eat heavy meals or for those who will not or are unable to exercise?

If there is not enough bile being manufactured by the system or if the bile is not flowing freely, then the use of bile or gall from cattle is coming into considerable use by physicians. When there has been an operation that has interfered with the manufacture or storage of bile, giving bile or bile salts stimulates bile formation and bile flow. Drs. A. C. Ivy and A. L. Berman, Chicago, in Minnesota Medicine, state that many of the tablets containing bile salts contain other laxatives or purgatives also, whereas it is the bile salt (or gall) that is needed in liver or gall bladder patients.

When it is desirable to give patients bile salts some dried animal bile or some preparation of bile salt should be given. These physicians point out that bile salts should not be given unless the liver or gall bladder are not working properly. The bile or gall acts as a self-starter to the liver and gall bladder.

No one should go to the druggist and ask for bile salts, because many preparations contain other purgatives.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What causes warts?
A.—The cause of warts is thought to be a small virus or organism.
Q.—What causes my temperature to be subnormal? Is one plus sugar considered serious?

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

RUBBER-COVERED wire such as is used around garages serves to make this smart lamp; which also requires a tin candy box for the base; three large and six small spoons for the standard; a plug and chain socket and a brass nipple that screws into the bottom of the socket. The spoons

Book 7 is ready. On every one of its 32 pages is a substantial money-saving idea, and not a useless dust catcher among them. That is true of all of the books of the series. FIRESTONE TIRES WIN AGAIN

IN 500-MILE INDIANAPOLIS RACE

MAURI ROSE, Co-Winner With Floyd Davis in the 500-Mile Indianapolis Race May 30th, Averaged 115.117 Miles per Hour on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires Without a Tire Change or Tire Trouble of Any Kind.

FLASHING down the straightaways at speeds as high as 160 miles an hour, Mauri Rose streaked to victory in the 1941 Indianapolis Sweepstakes without a tire change. 500 miles of grinding, pounding, torturing speed — and not one tire failed! Here's proof of safety — proof of blowout protection — proof of endurance — proof of tire superiority backed not merely by claims, but by PERFORMANCE! For 22 consecutive years all the winning drivers in this great classic of speed and endurance have driven to victory on Firestone Tires. Why? Because race drivers know that their very lives depend upon the safety of their tires. They have made it their business to know how tires are built. And they know that the patented construction features found only in Firestone Tires provide the extra strength and durability necessary to safety and victory!

The same super-safety and dependability that are built into Firestone Tires for the speedway are also built into the new Safti-Sured Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tires for the highway. Both are Safti-Sured against blowouts by the patented Safety-Lock Gum-Dipped cord body. Both are Safti-Sured for longer wear by the exclusive new Vitamic rubber compound. Profit by the experience of famous race drivers. Equip your car today with a set of these new Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tires — the world's first and only tires that are Safti-Sured.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!
